

PERSHING'S WIRELESS AND FIELD WIRE FAIL

WIRE COMMUNICATION WITH EXPEDITION AT STANDSTILL

TWO OFFICERS OF AERO SQUADRON LOST IN MEXICAN DESERT

Aviators Have Only Three Days Rations and Two Small Canteens of Water Between Them and Starvation—Communication Is Cut South of Juarez—War Department Sends More Troops to Border at Funston's Request.

COLUMBUS, N. M., March 21.—Wire communication between the United States and General Pershing's punitive expedition in Northern Chihuahua was at a standstill tonight. It was officially announced from military headquarters here. It was asserted that the army wireless station at Casas Grandes failed shortly before 6 o'clock, the only remaining line of communication into Mexico being by an army field telegraph wire which has been practically useless for several days because it has been cut in a number of places between Columbus and its terminus, thirty miles south of the border.

Two Aviators Lost in Desert. Two lieutenants of the First Aero Squadron are lost somewhere in the desert foothills of the Sierra Madre, with but three days' rations and two small canteens of water between them and starvation, it was officially made known at military headquarters here tonight. Army officers do not credit reports in Columbus that the two lieutenants may have fallen victims of snipers.

Radio advices to Major W. R. Sample, commandant here, received today from Captain B. D. Foults at Casas Grandes, commanding the aero corps, reported that Lieutenant Robert H. Willis and Lieutenant Edgar Correll, who left here last Sunday afternoon, each on army aeroplanes, had failed to arrive at the advanced base and that no reports of the missing men or their biplanes had been received.

Immediately instructions were issued to drivers of every motor truck leaving here to watch for traces of the missing men and their planes. It is believed also that some of the six aeroplanes which arrived safely at Casas Grandes are being employed in the search.

Much Concern for Safety. The eight planes started from here late Sunday for the flight over 110 miles of desert and mountains thru the Casas Grandes valley to join the expeditionary forces. Neither of the men was accompanied by a mechanic or by an observer and shortly after the flight began the two planes were detached. Nothing has been heard from them since. Tonight army men said that with the fliers overdue at Casas Grandes there is much concern for their safety. It was pointed out, however, that the delay does not mean necessarily that the aviators have met with serious troubles. Members of the squad cling to the hope that they may have encountered engine difficulties and been forced to land for repairs in some untraveled region.

It was pointed out that Lieutenant W. G. Kline, who started with one of the planes Sunday was to return here after flying out a dozen miles over the Mexican border. After trifling repairs he again started and reached the advanced base safely. It also was pointed out that it is possible that in landing in the rocky region over which they were to fly, their planes might have been wrecked and that the two officers may now be struggling to make their way to some settlement.

Wire Communication Fails. El Paso, Texas, Mar. 21.—Following hard on the news that the Mexican telegraph and telephone wires between Juarez and Casas Grandes had been cut word came from Columbus tonight in a despatch passed by the censor that both wireless and ground wire communication with General Pershing had failed. The army field wire between Columbus and headquarters of the expeditionary force was severed in twenty-eight places, it was said. The trouble with the wireless occurred shortly before 6 o'clock, but its cause is unknown.

General Gaviro at Juarez, admitted tonight that he had failed to restore wire communications with Casas Grandes and it was practically conceded by the Mexican officials that the cutting of the wires was the result of a raid of Villa men on the railroad. The extent of the raid and the damage done was either unknown or suppressed.

In the absence of any news from either General Pershing of General Gaviro there was nothing left but conjecture as to the result of the fighting between Villa and the Carranzistas said to have occurred near Namiquipa. There was a strong belief that Villa was not personally involved in whatever fighting had occurred. It seemed reasonable certain that the bandit chief could not have been at Namiquipa and at the various places at which he was located in advices to General Gaviro during the last week.

If it is true that Villa had clashed at Namiquipa with Carranza troops in a general battle in which he has been defeated, it appears highly probable that by this time his followers have come in contact with the American columns. The advance guard of the Americans was reported yesterday at El Valle, only thirty-five miles from Namiquipa. It is not believed, however, that Villa would risk an open fight with General Pershing's troops but would split his men into small parties and indulge in his favorite guerrilla warfare.

No Lessening in Tension. In spite of reassuring reports from Washington there was no lessening today in the tension along the border, or no weakening in the freely expressed belief that there was serious disaffection among the Carranza troops. The proposed protocol between the American government and General Carranza did not alter this opinion. It was declared that the first chief's actions by no means reflected the attitude or wishes of all the Mexican people and that large numbers of the troops under his command had been former adherents of Villa and other factional chiefs who still had strong claims on their sympathies.

Other developments today indicated that the American military officials here consider the situation along the border as far from satisfactory. On the advice of Captain Moses, commander of the cavalry troop at Fabens, thirty miles east of here, Dr. Charles H. Ricker, the medical officer with the troop sent his wife and family to El Paso. They were followed by five other American women residents including the two school teachers who closed the local schools.

Captain Moses said, however, that he had experienced no trouble and did not anticipate any. He said he had advised the departure of Mrs. Ricker and children simply because he did not believe scantily populated points along the border were good places for women and children at the present time.

Begin Roundup of Mexicans. Texas rangers and the cavalry patrols have commenced a roundup of Mexicans along the frontier who are suspected of being Villa adherents and of being engaged in the smuggling of ammunition across the Rio Grande, a practice that is admittedly going on. Seven of these men were sent into El Paso today from Eastern frontier villages and five have been arrested at Ysleta, twelve miles east of here. At the latter place the civilian residents say that the customs officials and rangers discovered a plot to ship rapid firing guns across the border. In the meantime the situation in Sonora becomes increasingly serious due to the action of military Governor Calles who is said to have entered upon a campaign to drive from the state all the persons connected in any way with the centrist or old Diaz party. The gravest fears of his actions is their possible effect on American and other foreign interests. His designs at Hermosillo has been followed by an announcement that a decree was about to be issued cancelling all concessions granted in the Huerta and Villa regimes.

This decree will affect many mining companies, public utilities, corporations and other concerns which Americans and other foreigners either control or are interested in.

At the same time he has ordered all Catholic clergy from the state.

Funston Asks for More Troops. San Antonio, Tex., March 21.—General Frederick Funston asked the war department today for more troops to send into Mexico, only after long consideration of the advisability of continuing the operations against Francisco Villa with the forces now commanded by General Pershing. General Pershing yesterday suggested that another regiment be sent to him and today General Funston asked the department for what he characterized as an adequate force.

It was announced at General Funston's headquarters that the Fifth Cavalry of which one squadron is at Fort Meyer, Va., another at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and the third at Fort Sheridan, Ill., would be brought to the border at once and sent forward along General Pershing's line of communications to Casas Grandes.

Line of Communication Weak. The only reason given for strengthening General Pershing's force of more than 4,000 was that his field of operations had become so extended that his main line of communication and the subsidiary lines were much weaker than they should be.

"Merely a precautionary move," was the way General Funston answered all suggestions as to his motives. He refused to say if the reported movement of interior troops of the de facto government to posts on the border and the lack of complete co-operation from Carranza troops in one or two instances had anything to do with his decision.

Some little uneasiness was displayed for a moment at his headquarters today when it was reported that the telegraph wires between Casas Grandes and the border had been cut but an official report, stating that the line cut was a "buzzer" line General Pershing had laid, and that it had been broken accidentally by some of the American forces crossing it, allayed apprehension.

It is not believed here that General Funston is worried to any extent by reports of alleged growing antagonism among Carranza troops, altho he is carefully studying all reports on that phase of the situation. Realizing the mobile character of Villa's band, it was not considered wise to expose the lines of General Pershing's command too much.

Operations in Huge Triangle. Lake Babicora, towards which one of Pershing's columns was reported yesterday to be moving, is almost 200 miles from the border and by the time the columns directed towards Carranza and Namiquipa arrive at their destinations they, also, will be almost as far south. South of Casas Grandes the cavalry detachments that are following the trails into the heart of the country where Villa is known to have gone, are operating in a triangle of approximately 3,000 square miles area.

The chase of Villa has grown larger than even many well informed military men believed it would. It has assumed the proportions of a campaign and it was pointed out that if it became necessary to extend the operations much more, it might be necessary to move into the field almost all the remaining forces of the regular army, exclusive of the 20,000 men now in the southern department, on duty in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona along the Mexican border. General Funston explained today that he could not well spare any of those for the operations in Mexico because it was equally necessary to guard the frontier.

With the exception of four and one-third regiments of infantry, two regiments of cavalry and what amounts to about a regiment and a half of field artillery, all troops of the regular United States army are either already in the border territory and in Mexico, or are on foreign service. This does not include the coast artillery corps or all engineer troops, signal corps companies and field hospitals and ambulance companies.

It was stated late today at General Funston's headquarters that no report from General Pershing regarding the operations against Villa south of Casas Grandes was received today. Unofficial reports regarding Villa's fight with Carranza forces at Cruces and Namiquipa, south of Galeana, were vague and contradictory. Whether the American column of cavalry that was advancing southward on the trail leading to Cruces encountered Villa was not known at headquarters.

Reaches Point Near Villa. Washington, Mar. 21.—General Pershing leading the American expeditionary forces in Mexico, reported to the war department today that he had reached a point near Villa and his outlaws. It was made clear in the despatch that General Pershing believed the troops of the de facto government were co-operating in the bandit hunt and that it is quite possible that Villa may be trapped.

In many cases, it is understood, the mines closed will not be reopened during the summer.

"It would not surprise me if many mines in the state, perhaps several hundred, should close down because of industrial conditions," said Duncan McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois division of the United Mine Workers. "Industrial conditions are far from being what they should."

PARIS, TEXAS, IS NEARLY DESTROYED

Wall of Flame Makes Almost Clean Sweep of City in Six Hours

REPORT NO CASUALTIES

Fire Starts Shortly After Five o'Clock and Leaves a Funnel Shape Wake of Destruction

ESTIMATE LOSS AT $2,000,000

PARIS, Tex., March 22.—At 1 o'clock this morning (Wednesday) the fire which started here late yesterday afternoon was practically under control. Several buildings, including the county court house, county jail and the First National Bank buildings still were burning slowly.

There has been no known loss of life. The property loss is enormous, cannot be estimated accurately at this hour, but in all probability will run well over $2,000,000. The wind has died down and there are indications of rain.

Fire Starts in Warehouse.

Paris, Tex., March 21.—Fire which started in the warehouse of the Long Transportation company in the southern part of the city and which quickly spread to the Paris Cotton Compress, shortly after 5 o'clock this afternoon had done considerable damage at almost $2,000,000 up to 9 o'clock tonight and was not under control at that time.

Thirty blocks of residences and business buildings lay in ruins with the fire raging in another part of the town.

The flames made a clean sweep of the southern portion of the city, a burned path three and four blocks wide extending to the public square, where a large open space arrested the course of the fire temporarily. On that square is situated the Merrick hotel, a four story structure. At 9 o'clock the building seemed doomed.

A hurried survey of the business district of Paris at 10:30 tonight showed only fifteen out of more than 140 business buildings still standing and thus far unsmothered from the fire which was still burning at that hour, having passed the public square, into the north side residential district.

Large residences in the fashionable part of the city, smaller houses in the factory and small districts, and substantial brick buildings were razed by the fire which was fanned by a brisk south wind.

Fire Department Powerless.

This section has been without rain for more than fifty days and the frame buildings were quickly consumed. The Paris fire department was powerless to stop the onrushing flames. Scarcity of water was also an impediment.

Just how the fire started was not known at an early hour tonight. The compress, with hundreds of bales of cotton, was first consumed. The fire then spread to adjacent residences, built closely together and of light frame construction. It is eighteen blocks from the compress to the center of the business district. This district was swept by flames, and laid in ruins in less than hour.

COLE YOUNGER, ONCE FAMOUS OUTLAW, DIES

TOOK PART IN MEMORABLE SACKING OF LAWRENCE, KAN.

Deceased Was One of the Last of the Members of the Notorious Robber Bands That Infested Western Missouri During and After the Civil War.

Lees Summit, Mo., Mar. 21.—Cole Younger, famous outlaw of border days but of late years a devout church attendant and peaceful citizen, died at his home here tonight after a lingering illness. He was 72 years old and unmarried.

Cole Younger was one of the last of the members of the notorious robber bands that infested western Missouri during and after the Civil War. He was a member of the Quantrell band of guerrillas and with his two brothers took part with the "James Boys" in bank and train robberies in Missouri and neighboring states that netted the looters more than a hundred thousand dollars. The leading members of these bands are dead, some at the hands of the law, some by suicide and others from natural causes. Younger after a long term in the penitentiary became a law abiding Missouri citizen.

Cole was the oldest of the three Younger boys.

The father, Col. Harry W. Younger, came to Missouri from Kentucky before the war. He was a strong union man, though a slaveholder. He settled near Lees Summit, 20 miles from Kansas City, where Cole was born in 1844. Colonel Younger was murdered by one of the bands of lawless guerrillas that infested the Missouri-Kansas border in war times. The sons said their father was slain by Kansas for the purpose of robbery. They immediately took up arms against the north. They joined Quantrell's guerrillas and had their part in the memorable sacking of Lawrence, Kansas.

When the war was over they and the James became outlaws. Among the notorious robberies of the decade following the war that were laid at their door were: The raid on the Liberty, Mo., bank in 1866. One bank defender shot dead and $72,000 stolen.

The looting of a Russellville, Ky., bank in 1868 for $17,000.

The Gallatin, Mo., bank robbery of 1868 in which the cashier was shot and killed.

Raids of Lexington and Savannah, Mo., banks in 1867.

Ten thousand dollars stolen from the Kansas City Fair Association in 1871 while 1,000 persons looked on.

The Corydon, La., bank robbed of $40,000 the same year.

A dozen other sensational robberies for which the Younger and James boys were blamed were carried out successfully before the three Younger brothers were captured in Minnesota after a raid on a bank at Northfield, Minn., in 1876 in the course of which Cashier Haywood was killed. The Youngers were shot many times in battles with a posse but finally were taken alive after a battle at Shieldsville, Minn.

Cole and his brothers pleaded guilty and were sentenced to prison for life. They entered the penitentiary at Stillwater, Minn., and became model prisoners. Bob died in the penitentiary in 1889. Cole and James Younger were paroled in 1901. The next year James shot himself, leaving a note ascribing his action to a refusal of the parole board to permit him to marry the girl he loved.

After Cole was paroled he was forced by Minnesota law to live in that state for three years. Then he returned to Missouri and settled down in a vine covered cottage which he bought for a niece in Lees Summit the scene of his boyhood days. For a time he was connected with a show and later went on the lecture platform, and became a good citizen.

In August, 1913, Younger was converted to religion at a revival meeting and became an active church worker.

"I've led an adventurous, turbulent life," he said. "The war brought on hate and strife and killing around here. I have been blamed for a lot of it with which I had nothing to do. They murdered my father and I was launched into a life of shooting and reprisals and rough riding, winding up with 25 years in the penitentiary. I was brought up in a Christian home. Now I'm an old man and I've come by God's mercy back to the place of my childhood to end my days."

WILL PROBABLY NOT DELAY DEPORTATION LONG

Washington, March 21.—Department of justice officials have about decided that Ignatius T. T. Lincoln, the confessed German spy locked up in New York pending extradition to England on the charge of forgery, possesses little information of use in prosecuting neutrality cases. His deportation probably will not be delayed long. Lincoln sent word to the department today he intended to break jail.

GERMANS BOMBARD VILLAGE OF ESNES

French Are Vigorously Contesting a Further Advance Eastward

RUSS ON OFFENSIVE

Lively Fighting Takes Place Along the Dvina River and Lake Region Between Dvinsk-Vilna

RUSS NEARER TREBIZOND

In their attempts to flank Verdun on the west the Germans, having succeeded in working their way thru the Malancourt wood and the Avocourt wood have begun a heavy bombardment of the village of Esnes, about eight miles northwest of Verdun and Hill 304, which lies about a mile and a half north of Esnes.

The French, however, are vigorously contesting a further advance eastward, which not alone would bring the German line nearer the fortress but spreading fan-like northeastward, would put in jeopardy the French in the region of Le Mort Homme. So great has been the counter-offensive of the French guns that, after debouching from the woods, the Germans were unable to launch an infantry attack and presumably are being held hard to their newly gained lines. To the north and east of Verdun the counter-attack has been only intermittent.

Germans Driven Out of Trench. On the river Somme the Germans entered a British trench, but immediately were driven out.

There has been lively fighting along the Dvina river and in the lake region between Dvinsk and Vilna with the Russians generally on the offensive.

While Berlin reports the attacks as having been repulsed with heavy losses, the admission is made that a German salient near Lake Narocz was withdrawn in order to escape the encircling fire of the Russians.

Near Butzitsch, midway between Dvinsk and Vilna, the Russians have captured advanced German trenches, and just south of Dvinsk, in the region of Novo Alexandrovsk, have repulsed a German counter attack on positions taken at Velikoleselo.

Petrograd says that in the capture of the Austrian bridgehead near the village of Mikhalitche, in Galicia, most of its defenders were killed in hand to hand fighting.

Report Russ Capture Ispahan.

The Russians in the Caucasus have thrown their line several miles nearer Trebizond on the Black Sea coast after further fighting with the Turks. Ispahan, Persia, is reported to have been taken by the Russians.

Heavy fighting continues between the Austrians and Italians along the great part of the Austro-Italian line, especially on the front from Rovereto to the Gorizia heights. No important changes in positions have taken place however. A successful night attack by Austro-Hungarian aviators has been carried out against the port and barracks of Avlona, Albania, according to Vienna.

PROBE CHARGE OF COLLUSION.

New York, March 21.—Charges of collusion between agents of the revenue department and manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes who are alleged to have been evading the law, have been brought to the attention of government officials. It became known tonight in connection with the wholesale arrests here of manufacturers accused of misusing or failing to use internal revenue stamps. Government officers who are conducting the crusade admitted that such charges were being investigated.

Millions of head of meat animals have been lost to the meat producing industry in Europe on account of the increased consumption of meat and the wasteful methods of killing. It will take years of careful breeding to restore the destroyed herds. For this reason we shall have for many years a relative scarcity of meat products and a correspondingly increased market value. Thus will American farmers profit for several years to come as a result of the war in Europe.

The postponing of an important vote in Congress in order to permit Democratic members from Indiana to pass over the date of their primaries without having to go on record on a most important national question, is a fair measure of the motives which actuate the Democratic party in its conduct of the country's affairs. In this case what the Democratic leaders would like to have counted as courtesy is really cowardice and will be resented as such as soon as the people find a chance to express themselves.

Taggart Becomes Senator.
If Thomas Taggart, appointed by Governor Ralston of Indiana, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Calhoun, is as bad as his reputation it is fortunate for Indiana that his term of office will continue only until November. Senator Taggart has been a prominent figure in Indiana politics for a great many years and whether or not he was guilty of all the political wrongdoing ascribed to him, he certainly merited a part of the criticism. There could not have been so much smoke without at least a little fire.

Another Needed Election Reform.
Chairman Hilles of the national Republican committee in his appeal for a uniform presidential primary law touches on a vital matter. The lack of uniformity will likely cause some unfortunate complications in the seating of delegates at the national conventions. He points out that if the principle underlying the California law should be adopted generally, that not only the unit rule which has caused so much contention and strife in the past would prevail, but also all delegates in all the states would be elected at large. This, in Pennsylvania and New York, would mean that the large cities would practically control the election of delegates in those states.

Rippling Rhymes By WALT MASON

LEARNING THE AUTO.

I'm learning the automobile; as, trembling, I sit at the wheel, and steer her along, thru the hurrying throng, how nervous I feel I jolt people out of their seats. I run over chickens and kids; a spurt she will throw when I want to go slow, she scampers, she dodges and skids. I sweat, and I'm weak in the knees, when swift around corners she flees, she whimpers and whirs and she gurgles and purls, and runs into fences and trees. My courage she constantly damps by running down bowwows and tramps; she collides today with a big heavy dray, and busted her fenders and lamps. I drive her around for an hour, this engine of terrible power; wherever I stray, on by death-dealing way, of feathers and fur there's a shower. At night, when I go to my bed, fierce nightmares abide in my head; I dream my new truck is just running amuck, and leaving a windrow of dead. I run over chickens and goats, I run over roosters and shot; and oft, in my dream, do I raucously scream, "My auto is feeling her oats!"

In the window of the Farmers' State Bank & Trust company is a display of "some Illinois weeds." There are between fifty and seventy-five specimens and they are nearly all of the noxious variety. F. J. Heinl mounted the specimens underneath celluloid covering and so they are in the best possible condition for observation. Each card gives the scientific name of the weed together with the various names or nicknames applied. The average person would probably guess that the weeds in this vicinity would not run more than twenty-five or thirty, whereas the facts are that the total is many times that number.

DATES IN ILLINOIS HISTORY.
March 22, 1819—Clark county was created, seventeenth in the state.

These points are mentioned simply to point to the differences in the laws of the several states and to urge the need there is for a revision along some common line.

Liquor in Mexico.

One fact in connection with Mexican affairs makes the situation there worse even than in other countries. The coming of war and conflict means a flow of wines and liquors. There is no established government there—no one with authority to stop it. So with increasing conflict comes the larger consumption of liquor and the demerit sure to follow and the flow of liquor inevitably adds to the flow of blood and to the general horror of the war time. A pity it is that an influence like that which banished vodka from Russia, abolished absinthe in France and placed an embargo on liquor in Great Britain, cannot have sway today in Mexico. After all, it is the very fact of the absence of governmental control which is the basis of all the trouble today, and the facts here mentioned afford but another evidence of that lack.

Alaskan Timber.

The commission which is to build the government railroad in Alaska will cut $5,000,000 fee of timber in the Chugach national forest for use in constructing the line. This is a good deal of wood. Yet it is barely more than 10 per cent of the estimated annual growth of timber in the public domain of Alaska. The forest service estimates that $60,000,000 feet of lumber could be cut every year forever in Alaskan national forests without decreasing the supply. At $10 per 1000 feet—a low valuation—the forests of Alaska would yield each year $800,000, more than Secretary Seward paid for the whole territory.

The greatest national bargain in all history was the Louisiana purchase; and one of Jefferson's chief titles to fame is that he had the wit and courage to throw his theories of government overboard and seize this unique, incomparable opportunity. With that exception Alaska is about the best investment of $7,260,000 that any country ever made. (Chicago Journal.)

"It's Never Too Late to Mend."
"Long as the light holds out to burn, the wandering sinner may return," is given point in the career of Cole Younger, once famous as a bandit, who died last night at a vine-covered cottage in Lees Summit, Mo. There for a number of years the ex-bandit had lived quietly and peacefully as a useful citizen of the community, a man who thru a religious awakening which came two or three years ago, was devoutly interested in church affairs.

It is related that following his parole from a Minnesota penitentiary Younger arranged for the purchase of the comfortable little home where he died and it was his great desire, he said, to spend the final years on earth living peacefully and honorably in the very community where once his name had brought little but terror to the hearts of men.

Looking away back for sixty or seventy years can be found the greatest reason for the change which came into this man's life during the latter days. He was born in a good home, where right influences prevailed. Succumbing to certain influences which touched his life as a young man, and latter tossed about thru the career of crime on which he had entered, finally the early training and the good impulses which had never been entirely killed, came to life, and Younger forgot those things which had gone on before in his life and pressed forward to better things. This man's career of robbery and crime has nothing to recommend it, but in the change he made there is a lesson well worth the remembering.

BIG WEED DISPLAY SHOWS VARIOUS FARM PESTS

Window at Farmers' State Bank Show "Fifty Seven Varieties" and Then Some.

In the window of the Farmers' State Bank & Trust company is a display of "some Illinois weeds." There are between fifty and seventy-five specimens and they are nearly all of the noxious variety. F. J. Heinl mounted the specimens underneath celluloid covering and so they are in the best possible condition for observation. Each card gives the scientific name of the weed together with the various names or nicknames applied. The average person would probably guess that the weeds in this vicinity would not run more than twenty-five or thirty, whereas the facts are that the total is many times that number.

It is said that some years ago John C. Andrus of Manchester, who has devoted a great deal of time to scientific and botanical investigation, collected specimens of more than 1,200 weeds growing in Illinois. Since that time as the area of cultivated land has increased the great majority of these weeds have disappeared. It is also true that a few other weeds more noxious in character have come in so that the Illinois farmer today has several hundred weeds with which he must wage constant combat if the best results are secured. The bank collection is one which will prove of value to farmers and others interested in agriculture.

BO. RD. OF ADMINISTRATION "CUI" CAUSE LOCAL UNREST

Various Positions — Abolished at State School for Deaf and Blind. Reductions for Teachers Are Rumored.

The telegraphic statement from Springfield yesterday that the state board of administration had issued an order cutting off maintenance for teachers at the State School for the Deaf and the State School for the Blind, and that the positions of various employees had been abolished, was the cause of a great deal of speculation and uneasiness in Jacksonville Tuesday. One special reason for the unrest was because the statement was not fully understood and no exact facts with reference to the state board's actions were at hand.

Along with the statement as to maintenance came the announcement that among the positions to be abolished at the State School for the Deaf were the following: One clerk, one lawn tender, one head farmer, three repair men, one vegetable peeler, one assistant milker, five waitresses, one hospital maid, one sink room boy, three hall room girls, three janitors, one house father, two relief girls, two house mothers and four attendants. Details were altogether lacking in the announcement as regards the State School for the Blind.

At the School for the Deaf there are only two teachers living in the building, and at the School for the Blind, only one. How any order with reference to maintenance could affect other than these remains for the board to explain. The teachers at both of the schools except the one referred to are engaged at a fixed salary per year without any reference to maintenance. It is possible that it is the board's intention to rule that $12 a month is to be deducted from the pay of each teacher. And, at any rate, until some statement is forthcoming all the teachers are "up in the air."

While formal notices have not been received by any employees of the State School for the Deaf that their positions have been abolished, it is understood that several of them have received advance information with reference to their positions and have already ceased to discharge their duties and are looking for some other employment. At the School for the Deaf it is understood that the board in discharging maids and kitchen assistants has suggested that this work be done by girl pupils of the school and that some work in other departments is to be allotted to the boys. If, in accordance with the rumor, enough positions are to be abolished at the School for the Blind to effect a $5,000 saving, the school might as well as close down, for the teaching force would be so badly crippled. At present the affairs are in a decidedly muddled condition, but the board is expected to give light on the subject by orders today.

Why Batteries Don't Last Forever

After repeated inquiries as to what the life of a storage battery should be, the subject has been covered in brief by the Willard Storage Battery Company of Cleveland. They contend first of all that its life depends upon its construction, its care and the service it receives.

"Take all together, a storage battery well-cared for costs less to maintain than any other accessory as vital. If kept charged at proper rate and filled with pure water, the life of a first-class battery averages from 1-2 years up.

"At the same time, a battery, however well made and well cared for, will wear out and must be renewed. It is an electrochemical apparatus constantly changing its condition to supply current for lamps and starter. The better the materials, care and factory service, the longer its life. Some motorists believe a battery should last indefinitely like a spring or an axle, but this belief is being overcome by the educational measures of progressive manufacturers who want their customers to know why certain facts are facts."

The Willard Company has done much along these lines and the result is evident in the better care batteries are receiving everywhere.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET IS HELD

UNUSUAL SPEAKING PROGRAM AT Y. M. C. A.

Themes Discussed All Related to Relationship Between Boys and their Fathers—Big Movement Started Three Years Ago.

It was truly a festive time at the Y. M. C. A. last evening on the occasion of the father and son banquet when nearly half a hundred of each sat down to an excellent menu prepared by the ladies of the First Baptist church. State Secretary K. A. Shumaker and Field Secretary F. M. Deerpake are here and in their honor and to conserve the great cause the affair was planned.

The invocation was by Dr. J. R. Harker and after all had eaten Dr. F. A. McCarty was called to the chair and right well did he perform the duties assigned to him. His remarks were interspersed with wit and eloquence, good sense and pithy sayings. He remarked that inasmuch as his boys were all girls he felt especially competent to advise the fathers of sons exactly what course to pursue.

A peculiarly enjoyable feature of the evening was the music. The popular trio, Miss Grace Hoffman, violin; Miss Minnie Hoffman, piano and Paul Morrison, cello, supplied several numbers and each time were vociferously encored and received the greatest compliments. Harry Beckman favored the audience with a solo "The Prodigal Son" and as an encore sang a touching selection, "Stick to the Bible, My Boy." His work was highly complimented.

Of the addresses but a brief outline is possible.

Control Needed.

The first speaker was John Martin whose sentiment was "The Kind of a Father the Boys Need." The father should first of all be a companion to the boy when he is small but when he grows older and likes athletic sports it is the father who can recall the days when he was the same way and can sympathize with the boy. He should be one in whom the boy can confide. He should be a man of character, a Christian. If he is a strong character the boy will be the same. He should discipline his boys neither too much nor too little. Many a boy goes wrong because he has not been controlled.

Chums with Boys.

T. M. Tomlinson responded to the sentiment, "Being Chums to Our Boys." A father should be interested in whatever interests the boy. He should be with the boy and see things from the standpoint of the boy. It is not necessary for a boy to sow wild oats for the crop may produce a dreadful harvest. He should win him away from that great evil, the poolroom. I would never think of going to a poolroom or taking a boy who frequents one for a clerk. The father should go to the game, the boy enjoys and enjoy with him and enter into the spirit of them. He should go to Sunday school with him; in fine he should do right if he asks the same of the boy.

Obligations to Fathers.

Field Secretary Deerpake responded to the sentiment, "A Boy's Obligation to His Father." It is popular these days to give the fathers a lambasting for neglecting the sons but there may be another side. Have we boys met the responsibility devolving on us as we should. Boys should meet the fathers half way at least in comradeship. Too often the boy prefers other companions and will have them. It is not all the fault of the father for the boy becomes old enough to know his duty and seek his father as an associate. The boys here tonight are a sturdy, healthy looking lot and they owe it largely to the fact that they had clean, upright fathers and they should be careful that they are able to do the same by their posterity.

"When an especially arduous duty was to be performed in China by soldiers selected from the army in the Philippines the order went to choose 3800 men who did not drink or smoke; who led clean lives and had religious inclinations. They had a frightful task to perform; a march of 1700 miles to the relief of Pekin. They were accompanied by bodies of soldiers from Germany, Great Britain and Japan. They marched six days a week and the others seven. They were naturally no stronger and had no better facilities but they arrived at Pekin four days and seven hours ahead of the others. They lost three men; one gave out from eating native fruit which had been forbidden and the other had diseased feet. In the Japanese army 297 men gave out and large numbers in the others."

Comradeship Essential.

K. A. Shumaker, state secretary, had for his theme, "A Father's Obligation to His Son." I am not here especially to talk but to spend three or four days looking over the field. This is truly a live question. I am gratified at the maturity of the sons here tonight. This father and son movement was inaugurated three years ago and generally it was boys from nine to twelve who attended but tonight the sons here are much older. It is truly encouraging. As the boy grows older the father should be more his companion. The mother is all in all to the son in his tender age but it is the father who can enter into the boy's feelings as he grows to years of maturity. You turn the care of the son too much over to the Sunday school, the day school teacher and the college and do too little for yourself. Many a tragedy has

New York, Mar. 21.—Nearly all of the best seats in Madison Square Garden have been disposed of for the Willard-Moran battle Saturday night and the box office sales up to tonight showed a total of $130,000. A conservative estimate, made today places the total gate receipts at $150,000.

FINE SALESMAN.

"It seems impossible to get a clerk who has sense enough to pound sand," complained the druggist. "I hired a new man this morning, and before he had been on duty two hours he had offended several good customers, talking about the war."

"I sometimes think that business men expect too much of their clerks," said the village patriarch. "You probably pay a clerk about $8 a week, and expect him to be a born diplomat, an Admiral Crichton and a Chesterfield, all in one."

"When I go to the Up to Date grocery the clerks always make me mad. They seem to have no reverence for gray hairs, and they don't recognize dignity when they see it. When I stepped in there yesterday, to price the prunes, a clerk stepped up and said, 'Well, old top, what can we do for you this morning?' It may be that I am a top, and if so I certainly am an old one, but I don't like to be addressed that way by a young man in a grocery store. So, instead of asking him about the prunes, I inquired where his employer was, and was informed that he was in the basement. I started for the cellar filled with virtuous indignation, determined to tell the grocer just what I thought of his salesmen, but as I went along, and groped my way down the stairs, I recalled the fact that the offending clerk was merely trying to be friendly and sociable, and it isn't fair to expect too much of a young man who works eighteen hours a day for $9 a week."

"If we demand gentlemen of the old school to wait upon us, we may get them in time, for the merchant princes will do almost anything to gain and hold the good will of the public. But if our grocer is induced to engaged high-priced men, so that our sensibilities won't be jarred, he'll raise the price of his goods accordingly, and we'll have to pay twice as much for our denatured butter and hairloom eggs."

"I was turning such matters over in my mind when I stepped on an empty box that had been left on the stairs, and I don't remember just how I got down the rest of the way, but I think I went end over end, for there are several large lumps on my head today. The grocer was near the foot of the stairs, drawing a measure full of New Orleans molasses from a barrel, and I bumped against him, and he fell on me. It was pretty dark, and I suppose he thought I was a yeggman, for he began batting me over the person with his measure, and when I finally emerged from the cellar my whiskers were full of treacle, and their rainment badly disorganized. I thought this the finest act of politeness I ever saw, and I doubt whether any of the gilt-edge salesmen we read about would have been as considerate."

ANDERSON RELEASED ON BOND

Charles Anderson who has been in jail on the charge of highway robbery was before Justice Dyer Tuesday and was released on bond in the sum of $300. Anderson was arrested some days ago on the charge of attempting to rob J. D. Smith of Manchester. Smith in his complaint said that Anderson had offered to buy a quart of whiskey for him. Smith says he gave Anderson a dollar and half and that Anderson then invited him to go along with him. He stated Anderson took him into an alley and attempted to grab his watch.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES HELD FOR LATE REV. PRESTON WOOD

Many Methodist Ministers Gathered Here for Funeral of Deceased Brother—Interment in Diamond Grove.

Funeral services in memory of the late Rev. Preston Wood were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Bronson, 231 Webster avenue, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. In addition to the large company of sorrowing friends there were many ministers in attendance from this and adjoining districts. Rev. Mr. Wood was not old in the ministry, but he had been in the work long enough to have formed lasting friendships with ministers all over the conference. His spirit and character were such that he seemed to secure and keep an especially warm place in the affections of his co-workers in the ministry, as well as with the parishioners in the various charges he served.

The services Tuesday afternoon were comparatively simple, the number of ministers took part and it was very apparent all thru how deeply they felt the loss sustained by the sudden going of their brother. Rev. T. N. Ewing, pastor of the First Methodist church of Springfield, read the introduction to the ritual service, and a prayer was offered by Rev. B. F. Shipp, superintendent of the Bloomington district. Rev. A. S. Flannigan, superintendent of the Quincy district, read the thirty-ninth Psalm and Rev. J. C. Nate, superintendent of the Champaign district, passages from the book of John. Rev. F. A. McCarty, superintendent of the Jacksonville district, who was in charge of the service, read a letter from Bishop Wm. F. McDowell, Chicago, presiding bishop of the Illinois conference. Bishop McDowell's letter, which is given below, gave a clear index to his high estimate of Preston Wood, whom he had learned to love and honor thru the years. The closing prayer was by Rev. Joseph W. VanCleve, superintendent of the Decatur district. The floral emblems were especially beautiful and were cared for by Mrs. Fred Beggs, Mrs. F. L. Randall, Misses Martha Greenleaf, Florence Loar, Margaret Patterson and Catherine Milburn. Interment was in Diamond Grove cemetery, where Rev. F. A. McCarty had charge of the service. The bearers were Rev. F. R. Madden, Rev. G. W. Plagge, Rev. W. W. Theobald, Rev. H. H. Sherman, Rev. C. H. Davis of Jacksonville and Rev. J. D. Kruwell of Springfield.

Letter from Bishop.

The letter from Bishop McDowell, read by Rev. Mr. McCarty, was as follows: Chicago, Ill., March 20, 1916. Dear Brother McCarty.

Last night I came home late and found on my desk a telegram from Ewing which began: "Preston Wood dead." I have not been so shocked, so hurt in my heart, since Salterfield phoned me early one morning, "James Rowe is dead." I did what you all did. I am at it now, as you are, and will be I weep and was not ashamed. Dear Preston Wood! How we loved him! He was the son of the conference. He loved it as the old Jews loved Jerusalem. Nothing that I have done pleases me more this morning than the fact that I gave him a district. He had a sentiment about it. It was not ambition for place, but a sentiment, to stand in succession to his father. And the two of them, with clean hands and clean hearts, have ascended the hill of the Lord where they stand together.

Give my love to the conference, at the funeral. Only imperative engagements prevent my presence. But know that I shall have deep sorrow and my eyes are full of tears as are yours. I will try to write dear Mrs. Wood. But what shall I say? Heaven bless her.

Ever yours,

William F. McDowell.

In addition Rev. Mr. McCarty read the following lines by James Whitcomb Riley, which seemed to fit the occasion with especial appropriateness:

Away.

I can not say, I will not say That he is dead. He is just away.

With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand He has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming how very fair It must needs be, since he lingers there.

And you—oh, you, who the wildest yearn For the old time step and the glad return—

Think of him as faring on, as dear In the love of there as the love of here

And loyal still as he gave the blows Of his warrior strength to his country's foes—

Mild and gentle as he was brave When the sweetest love of his life he gave

To simple things where the violets grew Pure as the eyes they were likened to.

The touches of his hand have stayed As reverently as his lips have prayed;

When the little brown thrush that harshly chirped Was dear to him as the mocking bird;

And he pities as much as a man in pain A writhing honey bee wet with rain. Think of him still as the same, I say. He is not dead, he is just—away.

Especially beautiful was the brief service held at the home of Mrs. Jane W. Wood, aged mother of the deceased minister, at her home in Duncan Place Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. About twenty ministers gathered for this impressive service. Rev. W. D. Beadles of Quincy spoke briefly of their love for the deceased and their sympathy for the mother, and then all joined in the hymn, "Shall We Gather at the River?" Rev. Mr. McCarty read the letter received from Bishop McDowell and Rev. J. W. VanCleve offered a prayer.

Here for Funeral.

Ministers from out of the city who attended the funeral were: The Rev. J. W. VanCleve, superintendent of the Decatur district, the Rev. B. F. Shipp, superintendent of the Bloomington district, the Rev. C. F. Buker, superintendent of the Mattoon district, the Rev. A. S. Flannigan, superintendent of the Quincy district, the Rev. J. C. Nate, superintendent of the Champaign district, the Rev. W. N. Tobie, superintendent of the Danville district, the Rev. C. E. Taylor, the Rev. N. M. Riggs, and the Rev. W. T. Beadles of Quincy; the Rev. Theodore Kemp, president of Illinois Wesleyan university, Bloomington; the Rev. J. F. McNally and the Rev. T. L. Hancock of Meredosia; the Rev. Parker Shields; the Rev. W. Wells; the Rev. A. L. T. Ewert, Danville; the Rev. E. S. Lugg, Lovington; the Rev. G. E. Scrimger, New man; the Rev. R. F. McDaniel, Decatur.

Relatives from out of the city present included the Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Phillips of Cerro Gordo, the Rev. John M. Phillips of Boston, W. P. Phillips of Bloomington, Mrs. James Gafford of Clear Lake, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. William Dobbins of Danville, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Duncan, Mrs. Edward Duncan, Mrs. Harry Roberts and Frank P. Reff of Delavan and Miss Margaret Patterson of Springfield.

SAVING THE TREES.

In accordance with the action taken by the park board at its called meeting Monday evening a force was employed yesterday to work at saving the elm trees from the noxious insects that may harm them. Mr. Cox sent a team and the Traction Company gave an arrel of settlements from the tar well which answered a fine purpose. A good strand of packing was wrapped about each tree after the rough bark had been smoothed and a good lot of tar applied with a brush above, under and on the strand so that it is difficult to see how the most enterprising bug could manage to get above the obstruction. The men finished the trees in central park shortly after noon and then repaired to Duncan park to begin work on the trees there. The trees at Nichols park will also have due attention and the cost of the entire work will not be great.

WILL MEET TOMORROW.

Worth Careful Thought

Do you read the label to know whether your baking powder is made from cream of tartar or, on the other hand, from alum or phosphate?

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes, and adds to the food only wholesome qualities.

Some baking powders contain alum or phosphate, both of mineral origin, and used as substitutes for cream of tartar because of their cheapness.

Never sacrifice quality and healthfulness for low price.

Sure Thing at Home

P. A. Edred, Conejo, Calif., writes as follows: "I have sold Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and also other lines of cough medicines for a number of years, but never use anything but Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for my family or myself, as I find it produces the best results, always cures severe colds and sore chest and does not contain opiates or other harmful drugs."

Unthinking and careless people neglect their coughs and colds, not realizing how they weaken the system and lower the vital resistance to such grave diseases as bronchitis, pleurisy and even pneumonia.

For promptly averting serious results from a cold, use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It spreads a healing soothing influence over raw inflamed surfaces, eases tightness and soreness of chest, helps croup, whooping cough, stuffy wheezy breathing, bronchitis and all grippes coughs.

Washing Won't Rid Head Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

GROWING RED CLOVER EXPLAINED IN BULLETIN

How to Overcome Some of the Difficulties in Securing and Maintaining a Good Stand.

The area in red clover is less today than it has been and very much less than it should be. In the New England States, for example, the acreage decreased 20 per cent in the decade between 1899 and 1909. In Ohio, one of the important clover States in 1911, it was little more than half of what it had been in 1897. The area in clover seed in Michigan in 1897 was more than double the area in 1914. During this same period the seed harvest in Illinois fell from 193,509 bushels to 42,409. In short, all the figures available from these and other States point in one direction—to a serious decrease in the area devoted to red clover.

Loss From Crop Failure.

The cause of this decline in clover growing is to be found in the increasing difficulty experienced in getting a stand, and in the less satisfactory growth of the crop when a stand is secured. There is no way of estimating the loss suffered annually by farmers because they fail to save a catch of clover. They lose not only the money spent for seed, but also the anticipated benefit to the land from the growth of the clover, as well as the hay crop for the year following the sowing. In Iowa Prof. Hughes calculated from more than a thousand reports that the farmers of that State suffered a total loss of one and three-quarters millions of dollars in the years 1910 and 1913 because of the failure of the clover seeding. In this case the failures were due to unprecedented droughts, a type of risk which is unavoidable. It is the part of wisdom to decrease such risk as much as possible, and the only way to do that is to make the conditions as nearly perfect for the clover as they can be made. A strong plant may successfully survive many adverse weather conditions where a weak one will succumb.

While there are cases of clover that can not at present be explained, it can be said that the important principles of plant growth are directly applicable to the clover plant.

To get a catch, the soil, temperature, and moisture conditions must be right; and to keep a stand, the plants must be maintained in good health. The degree of damage which untoward weather conditions will do depends largely on how healthy and vigorous the clover plant is. The conditions most favorable to the growth of the clover plant must, therefore, be studied and regulated, so far as economy and circumstances will permit. Clover delights in a relatively cool, moist climate and in a fertile loamy soil, containing plenty of vegetable matter, lime, and phosphorus. Of course these ideal conditions can not be fully realized in practice. One of the chief uses of clover is to improve the soil by putting into it vegetable matter, and farmers have a right to expect clover to grow at least reasonably well on soils whose fertility they wish to maintain or increase.

Lime a Necessity.

It is, however, a mistake to suppose that clover will grow on any soil however much run down. There are certain things that clover demands, and the most important are a good supply of lime and phosphates. There are, it is true, conditions under which clover thrives on acid soils. These conditions are not yet fully understood, but they appear to be related to cool summers and plenty of moisture, which can not be expected in most of the clover belt.

It is not always easy to tell when a soil has enough lime. There are several methods for testing the "lime requirement" of soils; but for practical purposes, this may be roughly determined by the kind of plants growing on the land. If trouble has been experienced with red clover, but a fair growth of timothy and of alsike clover can be gotten, the land probably needs some lime, say 1,000 pounds of ground limestone per acre; if timothy and alsike clover are crowded out by redtop or if such weeds as sorrel are abundant the land needs plenty of lime, at least a ton of ground limestone to the acre, and probably more. While the functions of lime both in the soil and in the plant are not thoroughly understood, we can confidently say that the clover plant is healthier when there is plenty of lime than when the soil is sour, and being healthier the young plants will withstand a dry spell better, and the old plants will come thru the winter better than plants growing on sour soil. To sow red clover seed on so-called acid soils is usually a waste of time and money.

The addition of phosphates has also been found to be very beneficial, but here again there is no way to tell how much is needed without trying. If clover has not done well on a farm, the need of lime or phosphorus, or perhaps both, is indicated, and the farmer would do well to buy a bag or two of ground bone or of superphosphate and a ton of fine ground limestone and apply separately or in combination to a part of the field. The growth of the clover during the following season will tell the story of the needs of his soil. The bone meal and phosphate may be applied at the rate of 200 or 300 pounds per acre. Of course, if there is time and opportunity it will be well worth while to try different rates of application so as to find what rate will give best returns at smallest expense. On sandy soils potash may also be needed. For the healthy growth of the clover plant then, lime, phosphorus, and potash must be present; the presence of nitrogen is of minor importance, though, of course, the young plants will do better if nitrates are available. If clover has not been in the land for many years it will be wise to scatter dirt from a clover field or to inoculate the seed with the nitrogen germ. When this is present the clover plant can draw from the nitrogen of the air.

Value of Humus.

The mechanical condition of the soil must be good. A soil that becomes hard, excluding the air from the roots, will not grow good clover. Lime will help loosen up such a soil, but decaying vegetable matter or humus is the greatest need of such land. This can be furnished in stable manure or by turning under other crops that are not as sensitive as is clover. A soil without humus will dry more readily than one with plenty of vegetable matter, and in a dry season this fact may be all important to the young plants. Most of our partly run-down soils have lost much of the organic matter they had originally. The growing of wheat and corn uses up the soil humus at a rapid rate, and so the time comes when a severe drought destroys the plants on a soil that does not hold the moisture to the extent that it formerly did. Then the plants die, and the farmer blames the dry weather. While it is true that a severe dry spell may kill all vegetation, even when the soil is in good condition, it is just as true that clover plants can endure drier times and hotter weather on soil that has lime and humus, and that wheat and corn produce stronger plants and holds what moisture there is, better than on a soil worn out by overcropping.

Good seed should, of course, be used. Even the seed is high in price this year, poor seed is relatively higher than good seed and should never be used. Clover seed is small, and only those seeds can be expected to make plants that are dropped within a half inch or an inch below the surface. This is for the average loam or clay loam soil. In sandy soil a little deeper planting will do no harm. Seed dropped on the surface will sprout, if there is moisture, but the small plant is subjected to all the chances of hot days and cold nights and to the drying winds that so often come in spring, and they may be killed before they can get their roots down far enough for safety.

Seeding Clover.

Clover is usually seeded on winter grain or with spring grain. In either event it is much better to put the seed in with a drill than to sow it broadcast. If sown with a drill only about one-half as much seed is needed as when sown broadcast, and with seed worth around 20 cents per pound this may become a very important item. Less seed is needed, because the chances of loss by leaving the seed on the surface or by having it drop into the cracks of a honeycombed field so deeply as to be lost are avoided. If broadcasted, the seed should be covered by making a light harrow over the field. This will not hurt the wheat, and it is better to delay seeding the clover until the land can be harrowed than to sow on the frozen or wet ground and let the seedlings take the chances of the weather. It often happens that seed sown early germinates, and then the young plants are killed by a late freeze. All this may be avoided by seeding a little later and harrowing the seed into the soil.

In many places especially in the southern portion of the clover belt, clover is seeded in August, either in the corn or alone on a field from which small grain has been removed. This practice has also been successful as far north as Michigan and Connecticut, but is somewhat risky in those states. It is probable, however, that if rains follow the grain harvest it will pay to disk the fields at once and seed down to clover.

Where this can be done by the first week in August there is every chance that the plants will grow strong enough to pass the winter safely. The important facts that have been brought out by experience are, that seed should be covered as uniformly as possible and that the best depth in average soils is between one-half inch and 1 inch; that drilling saves seed and gives better results than broadcasting; that seed sown very early and left lying on the surface is liable to be killed by the frost; and that early fall seeding can be successfully practiced in many places.

Nurse Crops.

Clover is commonly seeded with small grain, which is called the nurse crop. This nurse crop serves two functions—it keeps the weeds down and it produces a money crop while the clover is making its first year's growth. Whether it is wise to use a nurse crop depends on so many things that it can not be discussed within the limits of a brief article.

It has been abundantly shown, however, that if weeds are kept down by clipping, the clover will make a better growth when sown alone than when with a nurse crop. In dry seasons the nurse crop is pretty certain to cause death of the clover by taking all the moisture and then leaving the young plants exposed to the heat of a July or August sun when in a weakened condition by reason of the lack of moisture. If a nurse crop is used, care should be taken not to seed it too thickly, since the thicker the grain crop the more certain it is to smother the clover or to take all the moisture and leave the soil dry at harvest time. Of the small grains, rye shades the ground least and oats the most, and these crops represent both extremes of desirability so far as red clover is concerned.

Maintaining the Stand.

The consideration of the nurse crops brings us from getting a catch to maintaining a stand. The most frequent causes of the death of young clover are the drought and heat to which the plants are subjected upon the removal of the grain crop. The amount of injury caused will, of course, depend on the season. The summer of 1915 was very favorable to young clover, as there was plenty of rain throughout most of the clover belt, but such seasons are exceptional. Injury will also be worse on soils deficient in humus, since these run down together and dry out more than soils having plenty of organic matter. Top-dressing the fields with manure during late winter is as good preventive of this danger as can be suggested. The manure will not only prevent loss of moisture, but will furnish plant food for the young clover, making stronger plants, better able to withstand drought. It is also advisable to leave the grain stubble as long as possible, so as to afford shelter to the young plants.

If there is a good stand of clover on a field in September and October, there is every reason to expect a good stand in spring, barring, of course, most unusual weather conditions. If, however, the soil is deficient in lime, the plan, too appearing fair in the fall, may lack the vigor to go thru even a reasonably mild winter. Two mistakes are often made, and these should be guarded against. The young clover should not be pastured closely in the fall, nor should it be allowed to seed. Last fall, owing to the favorable summer, young clover was found blossoming and seeding in many fields. This is bad, because it weakens the plants and increases the number of clover-seed insects, the late broods finding these flower heads a fine place in which to lay eggs, which hatch into larvae, many of which may live over the next winter.

Provided there is lime and phosphorus enough in the land, second-year clover should give little trouble unless attacked by root borers or other insects. There are leaf-eating insects that do damage locally, and some fungo have been known to kill whole fields or to reduce yields, but the insects working on the roots probably give more trouble than other insects or than diseases. When a field becomes infested with root-eating insects there is nothing to do but plow it up. (See Farmers' Bulletin No. 455.) The fact that insects and diseases of all kinds increase in a clover field is one of the best reasons why such a field should not be kept longer than two years.

Home Celebration of Wonder Interest

Preparations Should Always Include Knowledge of Proper Assistance

The arrival of a baby in the household completely changes the entire aspect of the future. But in the meantime, during the anxious period of expectancy, there is a splendid remedy known as "Mother's Friend" that does wonders. It is for external use, relieves the pains of muscle expansion, soothes and quiets the nerves, extends its influence to the internal organs and removes to a great extent the tendency to worry and apprehension. It is a natural treatment, safe for the mother, has no drug effect whatsoever and for this reason must exert a most beneficial influence upon those functions directly connected with motherhood. In a very interesting book the subject is freely discussed and a copy will be mailed free to all expectant mothers by Bradford's Regulator Co., 806 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" today of any druggist. Use as directed and you will then know why mothers for nearly half a century have used and recommended this splendid aid to motherhood. Their letters are messages of cheer, that breathe comfort in every word. It is worth while to know that "Mother's Friend" has been in continuous use more than half a century. Letters are frequently received to say that a young mother learned of this splendid remedy from her mother and from her grandmother both of whom used it with happiest results.

Because of this fact you may rely implicitly upon its safety, its effectiveness and its directness of purpose.

BREEDERS MEET.

Livingston County now has a real live, active Livestock Breeders' Association. At a conference of the breeders in the county at Pontiac, Friday, March 17, the organization launched February 25 was complete in every detail and extensive plans for the season's activities were made.

The Association is made up of five departments, Heavy horses, Beef cattle, Swine and Sheep, each of which has two officers, Chairman and Sec-Treas. Chairman of each department is vice president of the County Association.

The Association plans to advertise extensively. For this purpose, newspapers, agricultural papers, catalogues, circulars, sale sheets and illustrated folders will be employed. In addition to this definite plan is being made to show the Association stock at the Livingston County Fair and district fairs at Streator and Kankakee, and also at the State Fair. Local shows will be organized throughout the county.

The work of the Association will be centered in the office of the Secretary, Roy C. Bishop, at Pontiac, who will be assisted by the department officers and eight committees, the most important of which are advertising, intelligence, registration and pedigree, show, fairs, judging, educational and program.

The intelligence committee will be vigilant at all times in compiling specific information concerning demands for livestock such as this Association has for sale. Their attention will be given to all sources of information of this kind in the U. S. and a file of this valuable information will be kept.

Lists of all pure bred animals in the Association, with full description, are now being compiled by the Secretary. This is not being done too soon. All young animals will be listed before they are a month old and all deaths of young animals will be recorded also within a month after death.

Already numerous inquiries are being received for car-load lots of the Association stock, principally heavy horses, beef and dairy cattle. An inquiry came from Downs, S. Dak., for a car of young Percheron mares, one from Chicago for a car of stallions and car of Holstein bulls. A long distance phone call has just been received for a car of stallions.

All animals offered for sale by this Association must be inspected and approved by a committee appointed by the executive board.

The Association is already on the map and pretty well known. Soon we expect to make it known throughout the country. The advantage gained by our breeders will be tremendous. The Livingston County Beef cattle Breeders' Association was organized two years ago and was, perhaps, the first of its kind in this state. It has been forced to remain inactive until now on account of the foot and mouth disease. This Organization has voted to become a Department of the County Association and will now begin activities as such.

The fee for membership this year is five dollars ($5.00). When the first year's work is closed, a fee will be decided upon by the Association, which will meet its requirements in carrying on the various activities which will have been found to pay. The Association will start with about 100 members and it is hoped that by the middle of the summer this will be increased to 200.

DRAINAGE HEARING IN PROGRESS.

The hearing of the Blue Pond Drainage case occupied the entire day before Judge Thomson in the county court Tuesday. This is a lateral ditch in the Willow Creek Drainage district which was tried some days ago. A number of the property owners filed objections against the improvement.

It is the contention of the objectors that the commissioners by this ditch will divert water from another water shed and turn it into the Willow Creek district. The objectors are represented by John M. Butler and L. O. Vaughn while the commissioners are represented by Worthington, Reeve and Green.

The jury selected to try the case is composed of the following: J. A. Crum, W. C. Howe, Earl Rexroat, G. W. Patterson, John Voelmeier, J. W. Cunningham, D. T. Helmlich, W. H. Stull, Charles Laney, E. N. Kitzer, W. E. Smith and J. Spencer Self.

INCREASE IN EUROPEAN VISIBLES SUPPLY WEAKENS WHEAT PRICE

Reports of Less Favorable Conditions for the Domestic Crop in the Southwest Also Affect Market.

Chicago, March 21.—Wheat prices showed weakness today owing largely to a decided increase in the European visible supply and to reports of less unfavorable conditions for the domestic crop in the southwest. The market closed heavy, 1/4c to 3/4c net lower, with May at 1.08 1/2@1.09 and July at 1.07 1/2@1.07 3/4. Corn finished 1/4c to 1/2c up, oats unchanged to 1/4c off, and provisions with gains of 10c to 17 1/2c.

Late attempts by some of the bulls to realize on holdings of wheat were followed by a disclosure of the fact that the market lacked any aggressive support. Export sales of cash wheat in all positions amounted to 1,000,000 bushels, including 500,000 bushels to the government of Holland.

Gossip that the Dutch government was bidding for corn as well as wheat at the United States seaboard tended to harden the corn market.

Earlier in the session the bears had for a time made effective use of the circumstance that the stock of corn in Chicago amounted to more than 10,000,000 bushels. Oats were governed chiefly by the action of wheat.

Active foreign demand for hard gave strength to pork and ribs, which were also aided by high prices on hogs and cotton seed oil. The market however failed to hold the extreme advance.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK MARKET.

Chicago, March 20.—Oliver S. Green, with Walter Bros., U. S. Yards, Chicago, reports the estimated receipts for Monday, March 20, 1916:

17,000 cattle.
11,000 sheep.

Early in the cattle market was weak and 10 to 15c lower, with the leading buyers where they showed up in the cattle alleys, saying "not ready, will see you later," and all indications on the surface were lower prices. Later when they were ready prices became more active and the early decline was most regained. Price heavies made $9.85.

With a fancy lot of Angus reported at $9.95. Yearlings handy and good weights in numerous cases $9.25 to $9.65. The shippers' call was only moderate. A range of $8.50 to $9.50 and that range took medium to good steers and medium to heavy good classes. A range of $7.75 to $8.40 took all common to fairly good short feds. A fair call for $7.90 to $7.75, common to plain short fleshed steers.

The ones with feeders quality selling from $7.00 to $8.00 were without any material change in values. The $7.00 and below only a common lot, and on the trashy order.

Native beef quotations:
Good to prime yearlings, $8.60 to $9.75.

Improved Demand Gives A Lift To Hog Market

MUNITIONS STOCKS SUFFER DECLINES AFTER SHOWING STRENGTH

Some of the Better Known Issues Fall Below Monday's Minimums.

New York, March 21.—In its main aspect today's market was largely a repetition of yesterday's session, although trading was lighter and more narrow. After opening with a general demonstration of strength, shares of munitions companies and stocks associated with that division suffered material declines, some of the better known issues falling under yesterday's minimums.

United States Steel also felt the force of the movement, duplicating the preceding day's low quotation of 84 1/2, after rising to 85 1/2, but closing at 84 1/2. Bethlehem Steel was again heavy on one sale, which carried the stock down 15 to 50 1/2.

Rails were relatively firm, with actual strength at times in New York Central and the Anthracites, as well as Chesapeake and Ohio, the latter making favorable response to announcement of a new bond issue.

Some of the inactive issues, as well as sugars, recorded variable gains. Selling of the last hour lacked yesterday's feverish character and support rendered in the final dealings resulted in partial recoveries, but the undertone at the close was unsettled.

Marine preferred was almost the only leader to manifest consistent strength, rising 2 1/2 to 7 1/4.

Foreign exchange was again a feature of interest, the rate to Germany declining to a new low record of 7 1/4 which implies a depreciation of over 25 per cent for marks at this center. Francs also were heavy, but the concurrent firmness of sterling and a further brisk advance in Anglo-French bonds, which touched 95 1/2, denoted general improvement in international conditions as affecting London.

FOODS

THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but Rarely Suspected Truths About the Things You Eat.

(Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 34.

The Grain of Wheat Ground In to Whole Meal, Nothing Added, Nothing Removed, is Rich in All the Indispensable Food Minerals in Their Highly Organized Forms So Essential to Healthy Animal Life.

The folly of comparing the "digestibility" of first patent flour with the "indigestibility" of bran stands forth self-revealed thru the very nature of the arguments employed by the millers.

They say, as we have seen, that patent flour or white bread made from patent flour is "more digestible" than bran because it is "more completely absorbed" than bran.

Let us examine these statements. Complete absorption means constipation. Deficiency of mineral salts means constipation. Absence of cellulose or fiber means constipation.

Bran takes up moisture and holds it in the intestines, thereby making the intestinal mass more elastic. Bran stimulates peristalsis, thereby increasing the rhythmic waves of contraction and relaxation so necessary to the process of elimination.

Bran surrenders to the body the soluble extractives, salts, and colloids which it contains. These salts and colloids, which are physiologically active, are absorbed. As we have already seen and shall still further see, these physiologically active substances assist in the absorption of other necessary food elements.

Let us examine into this phrase "complete absorption" in order to see what it actually means when employed by the complete absorptionists who so highly indorse the use of white or first patent flour and so bitterly oppose use of bran in human food.

Bran is, of course, but one of the discarded particles of the wheat berry, and its importance must not be over emphasized at the expense of the other discarded elements.

In referring to bran here it is to be considered not as a food in itself, but merely as a natural part of such foods as wheat, corn, and rice.

Flour contains approximately 11 per cent. protein; bran contains approximately 14 per cent. protein.

Flour contains 1 per cent fat; bran contains 4 per cent fat.

The lecithins or phosphorized fats indispensable to normal nutrition are found in bran as well as in the germ of the wheat. In the milling of patent flour the lecithins are discarded.

Patent flour contains less than 1-2 of 1 per cent of mineral salts; bran contains ten times this quantity.

Of phosphorus alone bran contains twelve times as much as patent flour.

This does not mean that bran is a substitute for whole meal. Bran lacks a number of the elements that are found in the cells of the thin outer skin of the wheat.

Bran, as already suggested, is merely a part of the wheat, and its importance must not be emphasized at the expense of the other parts.

It is the grain of wheat taken as a whole, with bran and germ included, nothing added and nothing removed, that is ground into honest whole wheat meal. Such meal is rich in all of the food minerals essential to animal life, and contains just that quantity of bran necessary to make constipation impossible.

Where constipation is avoided the absorption of the irritating and poisonous end-products or toxins of intestinal putrefaction is rendered quite impossible. Thus one of the suspected causes of cancer is also avoided.

The idea that bran or any other food adjunct added to the diet of man will cure cancer is not advanced here. Such an idea is abhorrent to common sense. Foolish indeed would be the cancer victim who resorted to bran as a cancer cure when expert surgical aid is what he most needs.

Proof is not lacking to indicate that the food elements, so ruthlessly discarded by the common people in their preference for refined and demineralized breadstuffs, are factors of such serious significance in the prevention of many diseases that they can no longer be ignored by the scientific world.

F. L. SHARPE WRITES ABOUT STATE ELKS ASSOCIATION

Article Published in Bulletin Issued at Galesburg Gives Facts of Interest to the Order.

The state association number of the Elks bulletin published at Galesburg has a series of sketches and communications referring particularly to past presidents of the state association. Included in the contributions is one from F. L. Sharpe of this city, district deputy for western Illinois. Mr. Sharpe's contribution is in the following language:

District Deputy, Western Illinois
Dear Brother: Through the courtesy of some one (I know not who) I have received several copies of your Elks Bulletin, and have read it with much pleasure.

Believing that the purpose of the Bulletin is to be the upbuilding of our most noble Order and all that pertains to its good, I hope I am not intruding when I offer you a few lines in regard to the Illinois Association of Elks for publication.

In the city of Bloomington, in the year 1903, was born the Illinois association of Elks.

At this meeting Brother B. L. Maienthal was elected president; and he may well be called the Father of the Association. Always in attendance, a hard worker, but conservative, he has guided the Association over many a rocky shoal. The first convention was entertained by Jacksonville Lodge No. 652, in the spring of 1904. What a happy, rollicking time we had, but all innocent fun. At this meeting we elected Brother T. S. Bunn to the presidential chair, and to properly install him in office, we burned his hat in the public square, with fitting ceremonies.

It was after this meeting that the organization began to grow rapidly until, now, as you will find by the last report of the Executive Committee, every lodge in the state is enrolled in membership. In 1905 the convention met in the city of Moline, and many an Elk remembers the jolly good time we had there. It was at this meeting that Brother H. M. Ticknor was elected president, at the end of the hard fought battle. But it seems that he was of a roaming disposition, and he traveled toward the setting sun, preferring the mountain crag and ocean beach to the prairie pastures of Illinois, and is now a full blown blower of the "glorious climate of California." With his delightful home in the beautiful city of Pasadena, with a large and lucrative practice in his chosen profession, I think it hardly likely that we shall be called upon to send him any of our cast-off clothing.

Space, I am sure, forbids that I should speak of all the meetings that have been held or of all who have so worthily held the office of president, but one more of our past presidents I must mention, for I believe that he has done more to obtain recognition of State Associations at the hands of the Grand Lodge than any Elk now living or dead. He is an ardent Elk, possessing a judicial mind that is fully equipped with a knowledge of the principles and laws of the Order; an earnest advocate of State Associations under proper control, he has stood upon the floor of the Grand Lodge and fearlessly and effectively advocated our cause. I refer to Brother Bruce A. Campbell of East St. Louis Lodge No. 664, and I think that every Elk in Illinois should join in placing him in nomination for the high office of Grand Exalted Ruler.

In my visitations to different Lodges, I am convinced that the coming State Convention will be the largest in attendance of any that has been held. I am also convinced that the order in Illinois is in splendid condition; that the personnel of the membership is of a higher character than formerly. The time was when the better portion of the general public did not entertain a very exalted opinion of the B. P. O. E., but this has changed, and we are now respected by all informed people. Shall we continue to merit this respect? I trust we may; but if we do we should guard well the character of the entertainments given at our annual meetings. Let there be nothing staged that our wives or daughters could not see. The Illinois Association cannot afford to sanction anything that promotes immorality.

When we read the circular letters of our worthy Grand Exalted Ruler, we note his expressed desire to elevate the personnel of the membership of the Order, rather than to increase the membership. In this he is right and should receive the cooperation of every true Elk. In conclusion permit me to say, come on, boys, but let that good time be governed and controlled by the principles of decency and morality. And I am confident that our Brothers of Danville Lodge will see that this is done.

F. L. SHARPE,
Jacksonville, No. 682,
District Deputy Western Illinois.

WAVERLY MAN HAS BEEN MASON FOR FIFTY YEARS

Henry C. Narr Became a Member of Order in 1866—Came From Germany Before Civil War.

At a recent Masonic celebration in Waverly when the newly furnished temple was dedicated, special honors were paid to Henry Narr, charter member of the lodge. Mr. Narr was born July 4, 1833 in Lobenstein, Germany, and as a young man started from the old country to this land of promise. He arrived in St. Louis Feb. 24, 1854, and his home was in that city for a number of years. When the War of the Rebellion came he enlisted as a soldier in Company G, 101st Illinois infantry, and proved a loyal soldier in the service of his country.

At the close of the war Mr. Narr returned to Waverly, which had been his home for a short time. When Waverly lodge No. 118, A. F. & A. M. was organized March 2,

Henry C. Narr.

1866, Mr. Narr was a charter member, and thru all the fifty years since that time he has maintained his interest in the order and given it his enthusiastic support and loyalty.

When the Waverly Masons gave a banquet in their new lodge rooms recently Mr. Narr was presented with a lodge button as a special mark of distinction because of his long association with the order. Mr. Narr is a modest man, unobtrusive in manner, and of few words, but he is nevertheless loyal and true. He recently summed up his feeling for Masonry in these few words, "I have been a member of the Masonic lodge for fifty years and I have never seen a day yet that I regretted this membership."

Mr. Narr now lives on his farm 2 1/2 miles northwest of Waverly and is spending his days there quietly, looking back with little in his life to regret and forward with hopeful anticipation. He is a wagon maker by trade, but following the death of his wife in March, 1900, he gave up his work for the more restful life in his farmhouse.

The inventory of the estate of the late Johnson Sheppard was filed in the office of County Clerk Boruff Tuesday afternoon by the executors, Mrs. Emeline R. Paul of Carlville and John S. Sheppard of this city. The inventory shows a valuation of approximately $200,000 of which over $73,000 is personal property. The real estate totals about 900 acres. In the division of the land among the heirs the testator gave to some more acreage than others. The intention of the testator was that the division as to money value be as nearly even as it was possible to make it.

The inventory shows household goods and farm implements of a value of $2,944.75. Most of the personal estate is in notes of which there are over $63,000. There is about a thousand dollars in rents and miscellaneous items and over $5,000 in cash in the bank.

Yesterday afternoon A. F. Grassly attempted to walk down to the business portion of the city from his residence, 857 South Clay avenue. He had been ill for several months but failed to realize how weak he was and as he was passing the gas works his strength gave way and he fell bruising himself somewhat but not at all severely or seriously. In a few days he will no doubt be all right again as before the fall.

Many exaggerated reports were circulated during the afternoon and evening regarding the matter and the gentleman's friends will be glad to learn that the affair was no worse.

CORDELIA BANCROFT'S CONDITION IS SOMEWHAT IMPROVED

The condition of Cordelia, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Bancroft, showed some improvement last night. The child has been seriously ill with scarlet fever for several days past and her condition Tuesday afternoon was extremely critical. Dr. George E. Baxter of Chicago, who makes a specialty of children's disease, arrived here at 3:30 Tuesday morning for an examination of the little patient, and returned to Chicago at 6:20. He arranged for the coming of a nurse from Chicago, who arrived last night and is now assisting in the care of the child. Dr. A. M. King is in charge of the case and has the aid of Dr. D. W. Reid, and Dr. Carl E. Plack. All three of the physicians were last night of the opinion that the patient showed such signs of improvement as to give encouragement. The temperature has been at the danger point for two or three days but was lower by nearly two degrees last night.

SURPRISE PARTY GIVEN FOR REV. MR. MULLIKIN AT CONCORD

Large Company Called on Christian Church Minister—Family Reunion at C. E. Meyers.

The pastor of the Christian church, L. M. Mullikin, and family, were pleasantly surprised on Monday evening by a social call from quite a number of the congregation. They came unannounced, bent on having a good social time. Roy Abernathy and wife came all the way from Chapin to surprise the whole crowd. Then there were representatives from the Hopewell school neighborhood and on thru Concord to "South Concord."

A number were prevented from coming by sickness and the like but there were as many as fifty, according to your reporter's count, and while no stress was laid on "bringing something" yet they came pretty full handed and the gifts consisted of everything in the eatable line from fresh laid eggs and good sweet butter to groceries and so on. We are not going to tell on anyone as to their gift except Billie Deterding. He had the nerve and the money to bring a sack of flour. Good for Billie. The time was pleasantly spent in various ways. Good music games and conversation soon brought every one enjoyment. The guests departed at "late bedtime" wishing their pastor and family a kind good night.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Meyers living south of Joy Prairie station, attended church services Sunday and went to C. E. Meyers for dinner.

A family reunion was held at the home of C. E. Meyers north of Concord on Sunday. A farewell dinner was served to 41 relatives and friends on account of the new departure of Harry Meyers and wife to some point in Nevada. The Journal wishes them success in the new home.

J. B. Cooper, now of Springfield, was here for a short visit on Sunday, returning via Chapin on the 6 o'clock Sunday evening.

The oyster supper given on Saturday night by the Ladies Aid of the M. E. church was well attended. The public sale at the Duverdacks was largely attended. K. Earl Abernathy was auctioneer and C. O. Bayless clerk. Everything sold well and Earl was complimented very highly on his success as an auctioneer. The lunch was served by the King's Daughters class of the Concord Christian Bible school. They realized about $30 and thank the men for their patronage. Ora Hamm is administrator of the Duverdack estate.

There was no preaching at the M. E. church on Sunday evening on account of the very serious condition of Mrs. Dimmitt, mother-in-law of the Rev. Mr. Bowman. We extend our sympathy to Mrs. Bowman and family.

Rev. Mr. Haverfield, president of the Northern M. P. conference, preached at the M. P. church Sunday morning to a large and appreciative audience.

There were two accessions at the Christian church Sunday morning by letter. The evening service was largely attended and the sermon was the second of the series on "old testament characters." The next sermon of the series will be "Abraham."

Ora Hamm shipped two cars of hogs to East St. Louis Monday night.

SCHOOL BOY INJURED

BY 12-POUND SHOT

Ralph Weber, a 15-year-old school boy, was painfully injured Tuesday afternoon by being struck on the head by a 12-pound shot. The shot was being thrown by Arthur King, who is practicing for the Western Illinois high school meet. Coach Huber was present and immediately summoned Dr. J. C. Woltman, who gave Weber the needed attention. He was then taken to his home on South Diamond street. Tho the injury is a painful one Dr. Woltman does not believe it will have serious results.

The accident to Weber happened at the David Prince school. Coach Huber had a number of men out practicing with the 12-pound shot and the discs. The pupils had been warned to keep out of the way. From what can be ascertained the Weber boy ran up just as King was in the act of throwing and got directly in the way of the shot and failed to see his danger. The shot struck him on top of the head and probably was a glancing blow. It is fortunate that he was not killed or seriously injured.
